PERSONAL PROJECTS

Class Planner – Python

- Currently designing and building this application from the ground up as a personal project because this is something that I cannot find and would be extremely useful for students.
- The application gives users all possible class schedules given various options for classes.
- Creating the application using the Django framework, as well as various Javascript libraries.

Backend Store Project – C++

- Created and designed this for a class project simulating a backend for organizing data for a store.
